Florida-Based Security Services Provider Partners With ThreatDefence For SecOps

CybrHawk is a leading provider of information security-driven risk intelligence solutions that protect clients from cyberattacks. They offer a wide range of cybersecurity solutions that enable organizations to prevent security breaches, detect malicious activity, respond quickly to security incidents, and predict emerging threats.

Despite their extensive portfolio of cybersecurity services and technology partnerships, CybrHawk knew that traditional security tools like firewalls and EDR were insufficient for protecting their clients from advanced cyber threats. They envisioned a customized Security Operations service that would cater to their clients' unique requirements and provide protection against the most advanced threats.

To make this vision a reality, CybrHawk turned to ThreatDefence, an innovative cybersecurity company that offers advanced SecOps capabilities, including deep visibility, digital forensics, zero-day detection, network detection and response, SOC automation, AI and more.

ThreatDefence's SecOps platform provided CybrHawk with a comprehensive toolset to deliver scalable Security Operations services to their global customers. The platform combines numerous capabilities that are packaged and presented as an end-to-end, integrated experience. It provides real-time visibility and threat detection and assists in revealing weaknesses, misconfigurations, and vulnerabilities.

CybrHawk established a strategic partnership with ThreatDefence, adding valuable threat intelligence and extensive security expertise to the partnership.

Jacob Thankachen, CEO of CybrHawk, said, "ThreatDefence equipped our team with a comprehensive toolset to deliver scalable Security Operations services to our global customers, and also provided us with first-class threat detection and digital forensics technology."

By leveraging ThreatDefence's SecOps platform, CybrHawk was able to build a unique and authentic service, supported by their innovative threat intelligence and 24x7 Security Operations Centre. The platform enabled analysts to manage their workloads, prioritize their time effectively, and focus on hunting for hidden threats and detecting sophisticated threat actors.

Overall, the partnership with ThreatDefence has significantly increased CybrHawk's Security Operations efficiency, enabling them to support hundreds of customers while employing advanced playbooks, automation, and AI. The platform has provided CybrHawk with direct access to a team of cybersecurity experts who were willing to listen to their requirements and work with them to create something special and custom that could protect their customers.

As Jacob said, "CybrHawk's innovative SecOps services, powered by ThreatDefence, have left our customers impressed and reassured."

We wanted to innovate and provide the best cyber defense services to our customers. With ThreatDefence, we were able to launch innovative, authentic, and game-changing SecOps services that leave our customers thrilled."
